Reason For the Peculiar Signature on the Hotel Register.

Many peculiar signatures in the course of a season find themselves upon the register of a hotel. There are foreign fists of all sorts in script that none but the Kytka could unravel. The most curious of all, however, was placed on the book only recently. It is this: "Wm."

Only that and nothing more! There is no surname, no address, nothing at all but just "Wm." This is the way it happened:

A well dressed man entered the hotel the other day and followed his bags to the desk. The register was swung around into position for him and a pen handed him by the gentlemanly desk clerk. Then, in a free, swinging hand, he wrote the accepted abbreviation of his first name, "Wm." As if a thought had suddenly occurred to him, he stopped writing and looked up.

"What do you charge for a single room here by the day?" he asked. "Three, four, five and six dollars," answered the clerk. "Ain't you got no dollar rooms?" "No, we have no dollar rooms. Three, four, five and six."

the part either. "This is no place for me. Gimme my luggage." And he sneaked out of the hotel as one who had trodden on sacred ground.

"Gosh!" he said, and he didn't look

Which is why on the register today is the odd signature: "Wm."-San Francisco Chronicle.

FINE OLD BORROWERS.

Leigh Hurt Was a Champion, and Dr. Johnson Levied on Books.

In a book of essays, "Americans and Others," Agnes Repplier collects some notable instances of a certain condescension in borrowers. Leigh Hunt and William Godwin had the trait devalened to magnificent proportions:

"It would be interesting to calculate the amount of money which Hunt's friends and acquaintances contributed to his support in life. Shelley gave him at one time £1,400, an amount which the poet could ill spare, and when he had no more to give wrote in misery of spirit to Byron, begging a loan for his friend and promising to repay it, as he felt tolerably sure Hunt never would. Byren, generous at first, wearied after a time of his position in Hunt's commissariat (it was like pulling a man out of a river, he wrote to Moore, only to see him tump in again) and coldly withdrew. His withdrawal occasioned inconvenience and has been sharply criticised." As for Godwin, when his daughter pany and dealers everywhere .- (Adverran off with Shelley he refused to take Shelley's check for £1,000 if it were not made payable to a third person or "unless he could have the money without the formality of an acceptance."

Crabb Robinson introduced him one evening to a gentleman named Rough. The next day both Godwin and Rough called upon their host, each man expressing his regard for the other and each asking Robinson if he thought the other would be a likely person to lend

Dr. Johnson was more scrupulous. He "paid back £10 after a lapse of twenty years . . and on his deathbed begged Sir Joshua Reynolds to forgive him a triffing loan." But in the matter of porrowed books the case Lewis A. Tyler to Fred E. Leavens, was altered. At Y. M. C. A.

Rev. W. L. Clapp, of the Laymen's Missionary movement, had charge of the noonday prayer meeting at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday. There was a good attendance, and much interest in the service. Mr. Clapp, who has been in the city for some weeks, pointed out some of the needs of the local churches as he has observed them, and the prayers were directed along the lines he suggested. The general theme for these noon meetings for the winter is for "the greater purity and power of the spiritual life of the churches," to the end that they may more effectively do their work in the city. Most of the men who attend from week to week are business men who find it profitable to hurry through with their lunch once a week in order to get to the meetings.
